

Affordances:

While my version is paper, the steel version could be used to hold something up as steel is a strong metal.

The sharp end (I am not sure how sharp the real product is) could be used to cut something along a straight line over the edge of a table.

The size and ability of it to be folded flat makes it portable indicating you may use it often and it may come in handy.

The hole in the corner could be used to attach it to a keychain. This would again make it portable and easy to carry around.

Steel is strong and it could be used to bend or cut other materials.

Small notch could be used to cut material such as string.
